

Konrad Kramar

NEW BORDERS, UNPAID DUES

A journey through Europe and its unresolved history

Paperback with flaps, 256 Pages, 140 x 220

ISBN: 9783701734825

€ 22,00 incl. VAT

Release date: 24.09.2019

Is there a solution to the brewing conflicts between nationalities? A compelling report from London to Transylvania.

A Hungarian prime minister makes a Jewish billionaire into public enemy number one for the sake of an anti-European election campaign. In Barcelona, nationalist politicians go to jail for a vague dream of freedom, and Britain's EU opponents orchestrate Brexit as a fight against German supremacy. Europe is undergoing the greatest crisis since WW2. Konrad Kramar has visited the current hot spots of trouble. Beyond the bluster of populist campaigning and anti-European agitation, he shines a light on the rifts in nations and societies and traces them back to their origins in war, violence and displacement. Kramar explains why current politics has no answers to these crises and shows where solutions might be found.

KONRAD KRAMAR

born 1966 in Vienna, studied pharmacy. He has been working as a journalist since 1984. Kramar began writing for the daily newspaper "Kurier" in 1992, and became an editor for the foreign desk in 1999. He is the author of several acclaimed books on historical subjects such as "Die schrulligen Habsburger" and "Prinz Eugen".